the STORY behind No-ha

No-ha has its origins in 2005, it is then that we made our first prototype and started the development of "the invisible handle".

"In that period, together with my father, I developed the most appealing door solutions that have even become the standard today. We pioneered the development of hidden door frames and even achieved a Red Dot: best of the best with the development of SecretSlide, a sliding door with invisible rail.

After all these years, No-ha has become a collection with which anything is possible, with which handles can disappear into the interior or just provide a sparkle in your living room.

In this way No-ha has become a family business, but much more than a family business we are a father and son with the same passion for inventing and we will always continue to do so."
